The stock market was rather buoyant to-day, and quotations experienced a very great advance. Reading Railroad and Farmers' Trust closed firm at Saturday's prices. Long Island improved 2 per cent; Harlem, 1½; Norwich and Warcester, ½; Stonington, ½; Kantucky 6's ½; Ohio 6's, ½; Mohawk ½; Canton Co. 2½. This last stock is in the nands of speculators, and an effort is being made to get up a corner, but to what extent they will succeed depends upon the number of flats to be found in the street. This stock has, within a few months past been subject to greater fluctuations that any other in the list—from 30 per cent it rapidly advanced to 66 or 67, and as rapidly de clined to 35 a 26. It is now quoted at 46, having improved from 6 to 8 per cent within the past ten days. These things should be taken into consideration by operators, who should govern themselves accordingly.

The immense amount of merchandise passing through New Orleans, must give a very large business to those engaged in the shipping and forwarding trade, but we do not see how it is possible for that city to ever become a very large market for the pur-chose and sale of merchandise. It is the largest receiving point for several of our great staples, and the carrying trade makes it the rendezvous of a very large portion o our shipping. We annex a table showing the shipments of cotton from New Orleans for several years, giving the ports of destination. It will a observed that the quantiarger than the heaviest previous year, while the expor larger than the meavest previous year, while the expor-tation to Great Britain, France and north of Europe has fallen off from last and previous years. The increase in the shipments north, during 1844, was produced by the speculative excitement that made its appearance last No-vember in this market, and run through all the southern vember in this market, and run through all the southern markets. This speculative movement was created by the accounts constantly reaching the North giving the most unfavorable reports of the new crop. On the strength of these accounts estimates were made that the yield would not go over 1.600 000 bales. This was the highest point touched for a long time, and out of this belief the speculations grew. These reports going abroad, the same impression became current in the principal markets of Europe, and speculation raged more extensively abroad than at home. The abundance of carital in this city enabled speculators to obtain advances on very large stocks, and the reduced rate of interest enabled them to hold to the last moment. The excitement raged very exenacted speculators to obtain salvances on very large stocks, and the reduced rate of interest enabled them to hold to the last moment. The excitement raged very extensively until the latter end of December, when prices touched the highest point. As the season advanced the estimates of the new crop began to enlarge, and in January speculators agreed very generally upon a yield of 1,800,000 bales. This had but a momentary effect on sales or prices, and the operations were increasing in magnitude, until about the 1st of March, when prices began to give way and the market to droop. A panic shortly after seized upon speculators, and by the middle of April the market fairly broke down, and speculators began to walk the plank. All these movements were produced by the early estimates, founded on morrect and aggregated reports from the cotton growing districts. The revival of trade and the increase in manufacturing operations throughout the world, induced many to think that the demand for the raw material would greatly exceed the supply. This was a very good basis for a speculation, but unfortunately for those engaged the groundwork was not solid. The official accounts make out the crop to be 2,030,400 bales; 430,409 bales, or twenty-five per cent more than the first estimate—230,400 bales more than the 2,030,400 sales; 430,400 bales, or twenty-nve per cent more than the first estimate -230,400 bales more than the second estimate, and 30,400 bales more than the largest estimate current at any time. The result of the opera-tions on the last crop should serve us a warning to operators for the future, and teach them to give all estimates ;

BY THE SOUTHERN MAIL.

[Correspondence of the Herald.] WASHINGTON CITY, D. C., Sept. 15, 1844.

J G. BENNART, ESQ—
Dear Sir: The President leaves to-morrow for the White Sulphur Springs, near Winchester, Va.
with his friend, ROBERT ADAMS, Esq of Richmond. His health is improving.

Com. STEWART arrived at Fuller's Hotel this merning, in the 11 o'clock train from Baltimore.

The trial of the late commander of the unfortu nate steamship Missouri commences to morrow.

The trial of the late commonder of the unfortunate steamship Missouri commences to morrow.

The course pursued by the Globe towards our worthy President is very unjust, and receives the coademantion of both parties.

I took a trip to the country of Fairfax, Virginia, last week, and was surprised to see the quantity of Northern farmers who had emigrated from your State within the last four years. I was informed that no less than 200 families had removed to that country from Mockland, Orange, Ulster and Greene counties, bordering on the Hudeon river, within the last three years. They inform me that lands are selling in that part of Virginia for trom $3 to $15 per acre, and that the tide of emigration was setting in that direction rapidly. The Virginians were at first opposed to the introduction of white labor, but many have informed me that they had now become satisfied that it was for their interest that they should come.

Thousands of acres can be purchased at the trifling sum of from $2,50 to $7 per acre, lands too that can, at the expense of double that smount per acre, be made to yield from 25 to 30 bushels of wheat, and from 45 to 50 bushels of corn to the acre. I was informed that our northern agriculturists had made within 3 years 25 000 dollars, by buying up these worn out lands, and restoring them. Marl has been discovered in them in large quantities, and lime can be purchased at any of the landing places on the Potomac at as low a rate as it can be on Long Island or New Jersey.

These lands are within ten or fifteen miles of the or New Jersey.

These lands are within ten or fifteen miles of the cities of Washington, Georgetown and Alexandria where truck can be sold at as high prices as any of your northern cities, and find as ready a market.

Truly yours,

P. S.

Philadelphia.

The case of Daily, for murder, is still pending. Henry M. Phillips, Erq., occupied the attention of the Court this morning, in a speech of several hours, for the prisoner. He will be followed by David Paul Brown and George M. Ballas, Erqs. Daily, I repeat, will not be convicted—the jury will not agree. The Court House is crowded to excess, and great excitement prevails.

It is said a general row occurred yesterday afternoon on the Delaware, nearly opposite the Navy Yard, between the crew of an oyster and sail boat, in which two or three persons were knocked overboard. Don't believe a word on the Delaware, nearly opposite the Navy Yard, between the crew of an cyster and sail boat, in which two or three persons were knocked overboard. Don't believe a word of it.

The mayor fined four gentlemen this morning for intoxication. Does he know how many of his officers should be dismissed for getting drunk on Saturday night? That's plain talk!

The State Fencibles, or "Victoria Gusrds," Captain James Page, in their new and splendid uniform, made one of the finest military displays this afternoon over witnessed in Philadelphia. The Fencibles were accompanied by an excellent band of music, clothed in the same dress of the company, and looked and per formed well. The whole strength of the corps, including officers, privates and music, was 87, an unusually strong purade. Success to the gollant Captain and his liberal, noble associates. The Fencibles partake of a splendid repast this evening at Harmer's Corpucopia, 3d street below Arch.

The "Native" American Rifle Corps, of Southwark, also made their first parade, an i looked remarkably well. But the Philadelphia Greys, commanded by Gen Cadwallader, made the most soldier like appearance of any. Their band of music was superb.

The Girard College is slowly progressing; but now that the October elections are approaching for members of Select and Common Council, the Whips feel a deep interest in the speedy completion of the effice, and have accordingly increased the number of workmen to about 120. But it won't do. Whig rule, or more correctly speaking, Wing plunder and Whig outrage of the wildwand orphan, is at an end in Philadelphia. The people have two long seen with what shameful profigacy they have treated the bequests of Girard—with what shameful officers to lemm piedges for years past, and are now determined, thank Heaves, to hurd them from power. Let either the Democratic or 'Navive' ticket prevail in the car of Philadelphia, and justice, ro iong withheld, will be done the friendless or han.

The affain alinded to by several of our printy papers at the Ar district, Louisians, by the caterpillar, is said to be very great this year.

The benefit of General Rutus Weich, to night, will be a bumper. The "Olympic" will be crowded with the intelligence and beauty of the city. No man deserves more at the hands of play-goers than Gen. W, and I am sure his private acts of renevolence are alone sufficient to secure him a host of friends.

The Abolitionhits are in the field, and have issued a call for a meeting in the State Huuse Yard on Wednesday afternoon of the cityens of the city and county of Pailsdernoon of the cityens of the city and county of Pailsdernoon of the cityens of the United States, it will be a small affair, and I doubt much if some attempt at disturbance does not grow out of it.
